The Academic wing, which is wired for closed-circuit television in every classroom, is the center of study at South.

Maine South is outstanding in its academic facilities and achievements. The lecture halls, advanced laboratory equipment, and closed-circuit television available for students open new fields of study. The unique library complex is a new concept in high school libraries. In this area are the audio-visual department, the reading clinic, and the language laboratories as well as the usual library facilities.

The carrel system, through which honor students are provided with private study carrels, is an invaluable aid to students in accelerated courses who will each year bring honor and recognition to themselves and the excellent academic facilities at Maine South.

All of the extra-curricular activities of South faced the difficult job of organization. Yet with the increased interest of the students in clubs, publications, and student government, the difficulties were overcome. Various clubs also initiated new projects, such as the snack bar operated by the Business Club. Student Council also continued sponsoring a Christmas Food Basket Drive.

The drama and music departments operated mainly in the auditorium, the scene of many student productions. With the variety of activities offered at South, each student had the opportunity to participate in the area of his interest.

The fly gallery above the auditorium contains the necessary curtains and backdrops for stage productions.

Swimmers and advisors benefit from modern innovations, such as the underwater observation windows and sound system, while spacious bleachers encourage attendance at the events.

In both individual and team sports, Maine South athletes gave their best in all of their efforts. Football players provided the school with a victorious Dedication Day game as well as a second place rank in the Des Plaines Valley Conference. The basketball players went on to bring back South's first trophy by winning the consolation championship at the Rockford Christmas tournament. Sparking enthusiasm among the spectators were the cheerleaders, who had previously met with 300 other girls from the area to improve their skills. The Pom-Pom Corps provided halftime entertainment not only at home games, but were also invited to perform at DePaul and Notre Dame Universities.

CLASSES

The freshman, sophomore, and junior classes all confronted the same problems during the first months of school. New class councils had to be organized and their functions for the year planned. Freshmen adjusted to high school life, while sophomores purchased their class rings. The juniors found ways to raise funds for their prom. All of the students had the opportunity to meet their classmates at the class parties. In January, a frosh-soph "Mardi Gras" was held at which game booths constructed by freshman and sophomore homerooms were the main attraction. In all these ways, the classes prepared for the future.

The centers building, a new concept in the Maine Township High Schools, localizes all homeroom activity.

Seniors, as well as underclassmen, rely for guidance on the deans and administrators, whose offices are located in the front of the building.

The class of '65 provided the necessary leadership for the entire student body. In the Student Council, clubs, publications, and other extra-curricular activities, members of the senior class were outstanding officers and leaders. At the same time, seniors devoted increased hours to their school work and to planning for the future in preparation for college careers.

The senior class itself spent much time on money-making projects for the Senior Prom. The proceeds from the Senior Class Play and the Student Activities Calendar were supplemented by the profits of a highly successful cupcake sale.

By graduation time in June, the class of '65 was proud to be Maine South's first graduating class.

The faculty at Maine South provided an incentive for the students to achieve not only in their academic work, but also in extra-curricular and community activities. Many teachers gave their after-school hours to sponsor clubs, publications, musicals, plays, class activities, foreign trips, and sports. Students were also able to obtain special assistance during the "ninth period." All of these services were performed by the faculty in addition to their regular classroom responsibilities.

The administration exhibited efficient and capable leadership. Special counsellors provided guidance for college and work bound students.

The Physical Education complex illustrates the coordinated planning typical of the construction of Maine South. These extensive facilities are appreciated by the faculty.

From Frustration

The first day of school brought many frustrations and much confusion for the librarians. Working continuously, they had the library open to all students within the first few months of school. The library, Academics building, and other buildings provided a fresh and different outlook on the field of academics.

A special aid provided for students was the study hall carrels assigned in December. If a student were taking an accelerated or advanced placement course, he was assigned to a carrel to do individual work.

Other phases of the school were designed especially to aid the individual student. New graph boards in the mathematics department helped many pupils see basic fundamentals of the courses they took. Team teaching began this year in two departments — English and social science. Thus through new facilities, teachers were able to aid the individual with his academic studies and his plans for the future.

The acquirement of knowledge through individual study and new facilities helped to make the completion of this year a great satisfaction.

ACADEMICS

To Satisfaction

Writing and speaking skills developed

Maine South's first students enriched their written and spoken communication through a variety of courses included in the curriculum of the English department. Students in English I, II, III, and IV worked on grammar, composition, and literature, while those enrolled in speech arts courses such as drama and debate, concentrated on oral skills. Creative writing and journalism prepared Mainites for work on the publications: Southwords, Eyrie, and the Curio.

One of the lecture halls was used for a demonstration on reading improvement advantages offered to Maine South students. Freshmen increased their speed and comprehension in the reading clinic while critical reading was stressed in all English classes.

The variety of courses offered in Maine South's English curriculum gave all students from accelerated to remedial a chance to study methods of communicating ideas.

In creative writing students increase self-expression.

Visual aids are used to improve students' reading ability.

A skit in drama develops imagination.

Drills in language lab require concentration.

Languages broadened interests

This year Maine South students enrolled in all levels of six languages: French, German, Italian, Latin, Spanish, and Russian. By studying these languages students acquired a first-hand knowledge of the literature, contributions, and culture of people from different countries.

In the new language laboratory, students improved their pronunciation and increased their conversational skills through drills and tape recordings of their own voices.

All students gained a reading knowledge and studied the literary history of a language. For example, French IV students read La Symphonie Pastorale, and El Cid gave Spanish students a knowledge of the literary heritage of Spain.

Mrs. Farmer, a Spanish teacher, controls class participation in the language lab.

The sibyl visits Latin class and tells fortunes.

Social science emphasized world problems

All courses included in the social science department curriculum were oriented in the direction of solutions for present-day problems. In world geography, students studied the various parts of the world, its inhabitants, and its resources. Team teaching was used in modern history with as few as twelve students in a class. In this way, students could informally discuss problems which are significant today. The periodical pit in the library offered students the opportunity to read about current events.

Two courses in the social science area were required for graduation: U.S. History and government. These subjects prepared the South students either for the role of an active leader in government or an informed, understanding citizen.

Group discussion encourages individuals to express their views.

Mr. Rempel and Mr. Edstrom do not always agree on solutions for present-day problems.

Mr. Kohler explains world geography with the use of maps.

The periodical pit offers students a place for quiet reading.

Arts accented throughout building

Among the many interesting parts of our new school was the fine arts' area. The music department provided the students with modern orchestra rooms as well as practice rooms designed for the individual. In this way each student began to broaden his interests in music.

Not only the music department, but also the art department helped to create student interest in the fine arts. Special space was provided for the display of artwork near the library. In this way each student worked for recognition in water painting, block printing, and a variety of other medias. By providing a fresh and interesting outlook in music and art, many students took an interest in the fine arts this year.

In the library, artistic scenes aid a student in understanding his subject better.

Practice rooms provide a place for group rehearsals.

Susie Timmerman works on her wood engraving project.

Students prepared for home and industry

Courses in home economics provided the experience necessary for homemaking and preparation for future careers. Girls studied management of family resources, safety in the home, and housing needs, besides cooking and sewing. In advanced clothing girls supplemented their wardrobe by designing and making their own clothes.

Industrial education courses also prepared the South student for future careers and for more technical training. Courses like architectural drawing offered instruction in fundamentals and then encouraged students to work creatively. In any one of the variety of courses offered, from auto service to print shop, the industrial education student developed manual dexterity

Clothing students find sewing fun as well as educational.

Print shop provides practice in setting type.

Safety and technical skills are stressed in machine shop.

Under a teacher's direction students in auto fundamentals work on a motor.

South added new business courses

With the aid of new equipment and courses, business education students learned skills that would help them in other studies as well as in future vocations. Although accounting students had to wait for their desks, they discovered it was worth while. One of the new features in the business education department this year was in office practice. Students who took this course were allowed to work in the main office and take over the jobs of the regular office staff.

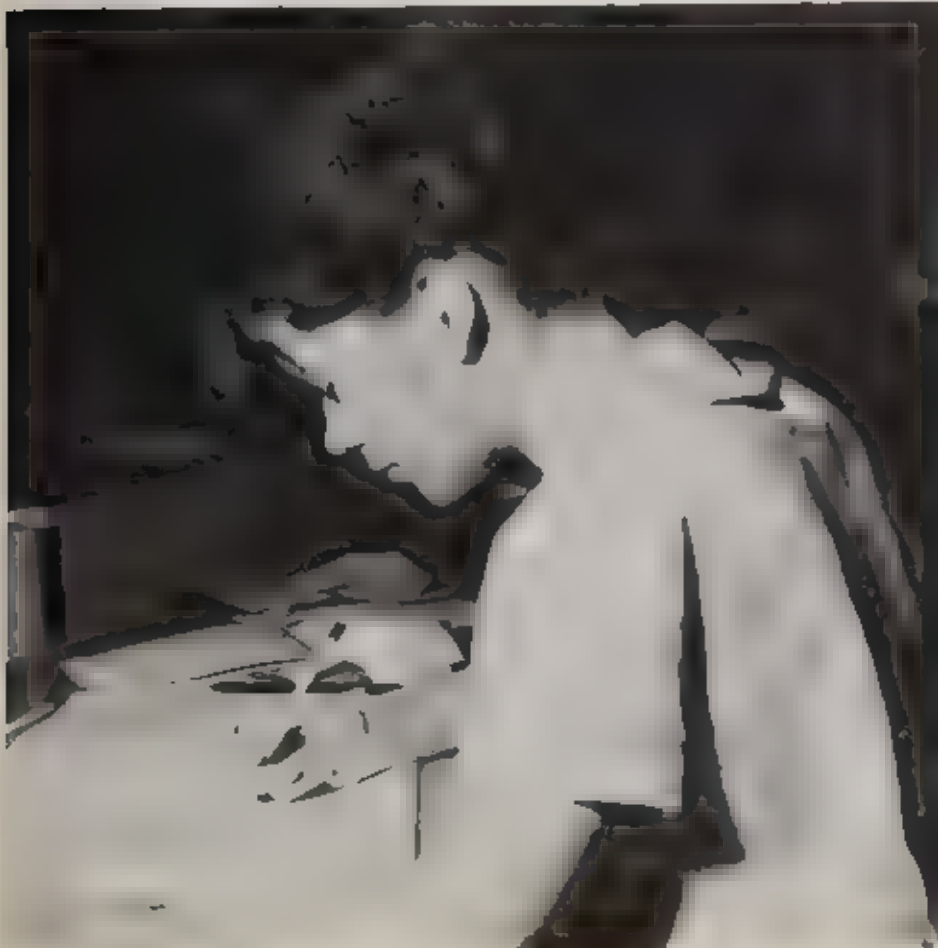

In the drivers' education department new facilities were added to teach students the importance of safe highway driving

Electric typewriters increase individual typing skills.

Steno practice will aid this student in her years after high school.

Problems in accounting are confronted realistically.

Through driver's education, students learn the importance of super-highway driving.

New mathematics curriculum started

Along with a new school came a new three-track mathematics program. The purpose of this four-year program was to provide classes which would challenge the individual student's abilities, allowing him to compete on his own level. The two problems associated with the program were the placement and adjustment of the student. However, the department was pleased with the way in which these problems were solved.

The first program started with Fundamentals of Algebra. After this course the student could complete three more years of mathematics, ending with a trigonometry course. The second program ended with courses in College Trigonometry and Analytic Geometry. Accelerated courses could also be taken for four years. In addition, students could receive college credit for Calculus. Each of the courses was designed to help the student obtain the mathematics needed for his future plans.

Among the facilities Maine South provided the math department were the new graph boards and bulletin boards. The graph boards allowed teachers to demonstrate and explain trigonometry and other subjects easily. Information placed on bulletin boards allowed students to see other phases of mathematics along with the one they were studying at that time.

The variety of the mathematics courses offered at Maine South helped to emphasize the vocational values of mathematics. School facilities also aided the college-bound student.

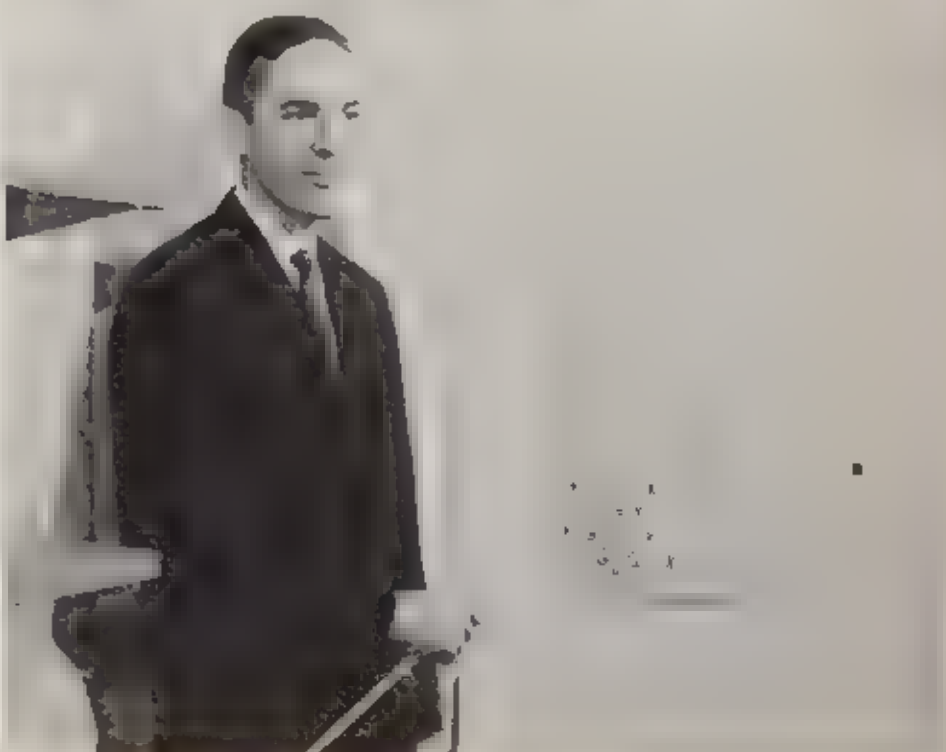

The library provides room in study carrels for individual work.

Geometric proofs are understood quickly with individual help.

Even small desks can be used to advantage in a study hall.

Bulletin board illustrations explain inverse functions.

Scientific labs- new equipment

Science students approved of new laboratory facilities which enabled each person to learn by himself. Under a teacher's direction, students were able to develop new techniques in experimentation as well as their own individual ideas. Laboratory courses were also aided by the different and interesting equipment supplied in the labs.

One of the first courses to be affected by the new equipment was the chemistry course. Weighing rooms were an addition that proved helpful to all chemistry students for each individual could work in this room away from experimental equipment. Chemistry II students were provided with their own burrettes. Students who were preparing for college courses found all of the new equipment quite helpful.

Not only chemistry, but also biology students were aided by the new facilities provided by the science department. Microscopic analysis aided the individual student in studying a variety of cells and material. In Biology II laboratories coordinated with the textbook material to aid the individual with his study of biology. Both chemistry and biology students prepared for their future this year.

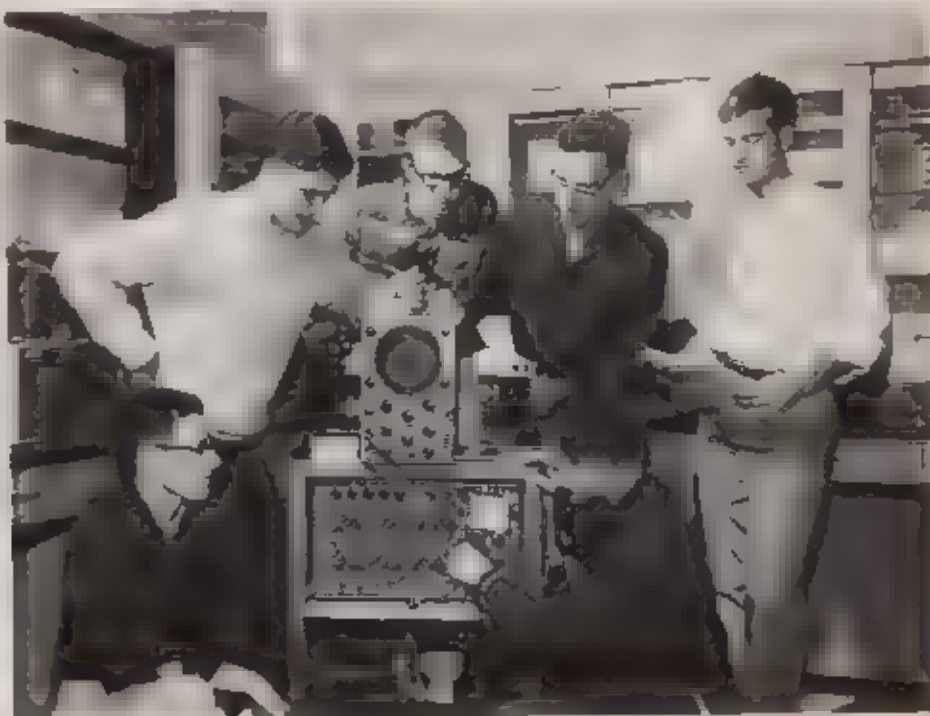

Other courses, such as geology, physics, and physical science, were aided by the new laboratory facilities. Throughout the year individuals helped to prepare themselves for their scientific careers.

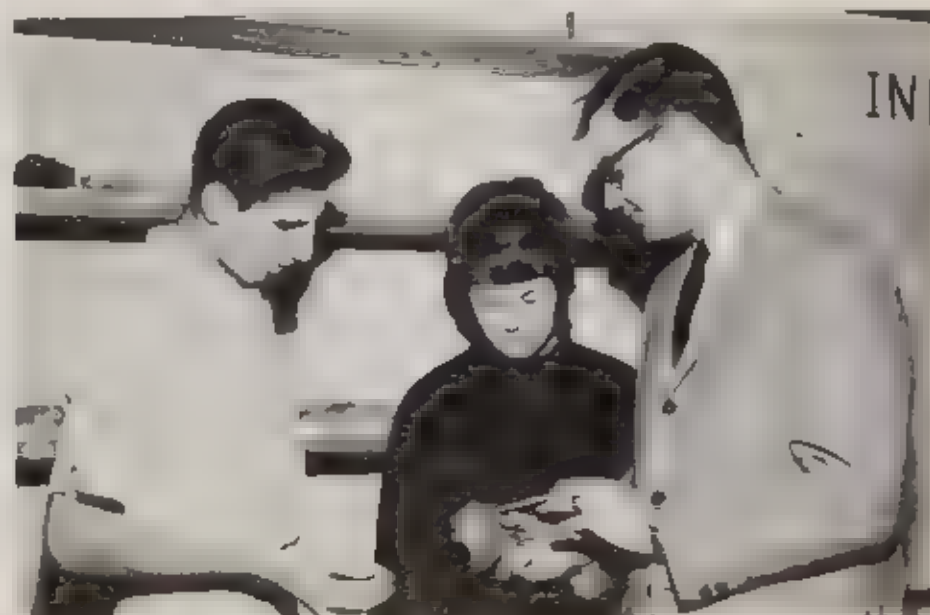

While studying scientific properties, physical science students acquire good laboratory techniques.

Analysis with the dissecting microscope helps Biology II students in the laboratory.

Special equipment aids students who are in science seminar.

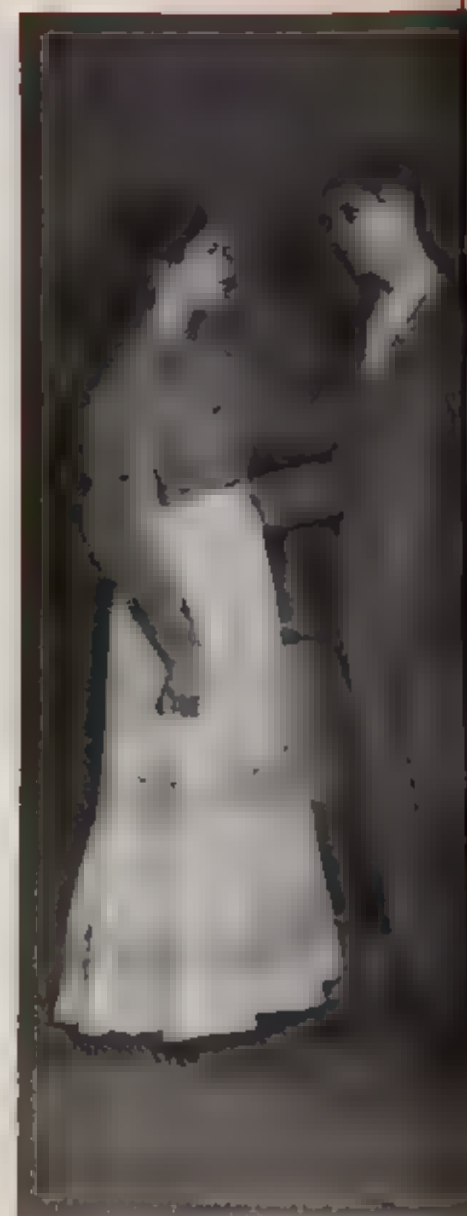

Individual instruction is useful to geology students.

From Opening Day

Maine South's first students came in September to an unfinished school. Although the Centers and Academic Buildings were finished, the gymnastic area and Performing Arts wing were far from completed. The sight of hurrying workmen and the sounds of construction were a regular experience at our new school. Many students took time to investigate the far-reaching corners of the buildings. Though the auditorium lobby was full of trowels, shovels, wheelbarrows, and bags of plaster, the auditorium itself, with seats of burnt orange, olive, green, and brown was nearly finished.

Many of South's numerous activities were underway soon after school began. Clubs in which every student could take a special interest organized immediately and started holding meetings. While workmen rushed to complete entrance and stage, the cast of "The Importance of Being Ernest" was in rehearsal, and on December 3rd, Maine South's first play was presented in the new auditorium. Students, faculty, and members of the community were also amazed at the outstanding quality of Maine's first music department. Maine South quickly evolved from an unfinished building to a well-organized and co-ordinated school.

Dedication day kindled school spirit

Maine South's Dedication Week was filled with fun and helped kindle school spirit. The week began with an all-school assembly, South's first. At the assembly, thirty-four senior candidates for Dedication Queen were presented to the school; later, five Queen finalists were announced at a pep rally.

"Mainely Monsters," the theme of the week, was carried through to the float designs. Five floats entered the contest, all bearing grotesque monsters. The Senior Class float, "Frankly, the Heat's On," captured first place. The dance, sponsored by the Senior Class, was aptly named the "Monster Mash."

Dedication Day began early for many students. Finishing touches were added to the floats; the cheerleaders and Pom-Pom girls practiced one last time. A parade through Park Ridge of school officials, the floats, and the band was viewed by large groups of excited and proud students and parents. The Dedication game against Niles West was a victory for the Hawks by the narrow margin of 20-19. At half time Sue Batchelor, Maine East's 1964 Homecoming Queen, crowned Patsy Henderson the Dedication Queen.

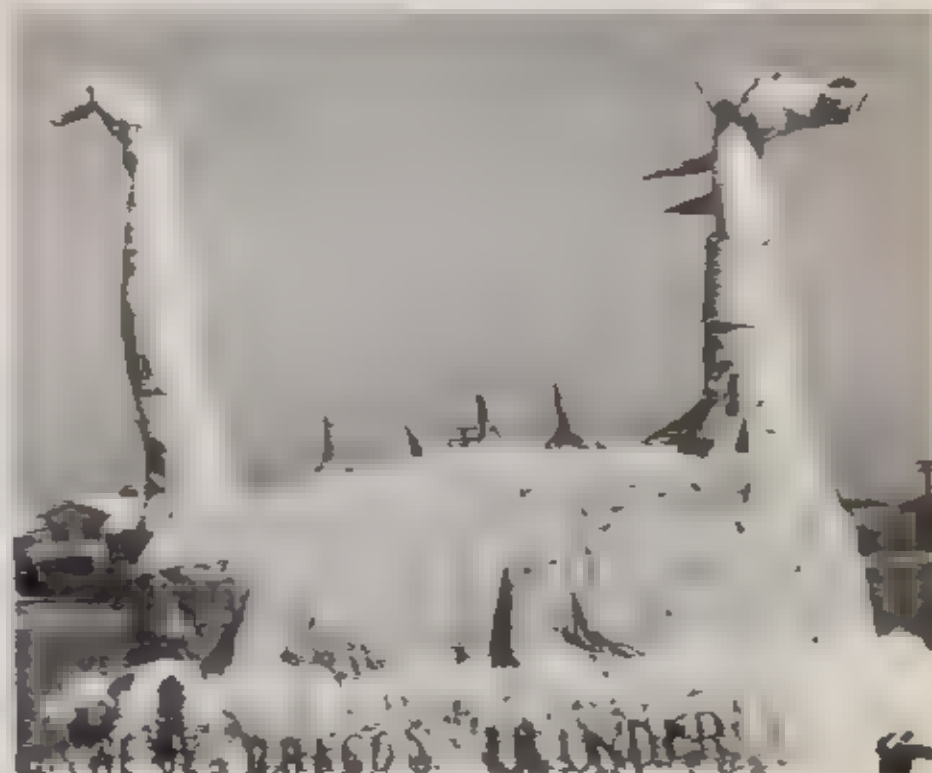

The formal dedication of South took place the day after the game and the dance. At the ceremony, a flag that had flown over the White House was presented to the school. Dedication Week was a week truly filled with excitement.

The cheerleaders received enthusiastic support from a capacity crowd.

The Juniors were rewarded for their hard work when "Easy Prey" captured second-place.

The sophomore class was justifiably proud of its third-place float, "We're Dragon 'Em Under."

Jim Yrigoyen led the Hawks through the hoop to a win.

The primary purpose of the Student Council was to provide the student body with an organized and effective communications line between the students themselves and the faculty, administration, and the community. Representatives were elected who would best represent the entire student body. Competent officers guided the organization and kept in close contact with the administration. Students were urged to give their suggestions to their representatives, and in this way each student expressed his opinions. In addition, Student Council had several major committees: Organizations, headed by Hillary Rodham; Public Relations, Sue Henkin; Service Corps, Claudia Board; Sportsmanship, Tim Lindgren; American Field Service, headed by Ed Neff; and Social Committee, Sharon Strothers. Organizations chartered clubs and organized a system for electing SC officers. Public Relations sponsored several projects relating to the community. Service Corps handled students' suggestions and expressed them to the Council. AFS planned projects to sponsor foreign exchange students, and Sportsmanship organized Homecoming, while Variety Show was directed by the Social Committee.

SC election paralleled national one

Bunny! George for President! Climb Jacob's Ladder! Keep them in with Henkin! Election of Student Council officers was one of the most exciting and important events, for student government leaders often determine the effectiveness of Student Council. Campaign week was fun filled with hall skits, after-school dances, poster making and tags, tags, tags! South's election system was set up to closely parallel the national system. An electoral college of homeroom delegations and Senior spokesmen examined all of the candidates' qualifications at a seminar, and formally nominated them at an all-school convention on March 19th. The student body voted on March 25th and 26th, and the results were announced at the Election Jitney. After weeks of campaigning, students were finally able to congratulate the winners—George Cantonis and Sue Henkin.

Skits, as well as entertaining, also carried a message.

At the convention, campaigners displayed ingenious posters.

Miss Carol Singer, the Eyrie advisor, and the Editors-in-Chief Kristie Duyckinck and Nancy Fleischman studied material to be used in the book

The Eyrie members spent much time congregated in Room V 108, where they carried on the important job of preparing the Eyrie for publication. Hard work, deep thought, and late hours went into the headlines, copy, identification, and the discovery of some overlooked minor detail: so began the accomplishment of what seemed to be the impossible—the task of publishing South's first yearbook.

The Eyrie staff was divided into sections, each section having a staff member as its editor. The section editor's responsibility was to supervise the scheduling of pictures, copy, headlines, and page layouts, as well as to perform personally most of these tasks.

Besides enjoying the opportunity to learn to work with others, to use creative talents in writing and planning, the members of the Eyrie participated in several social activities. One event was a trip to the Illinois High School Press Association convention at the University of Illinois, where the students attended seminars on the preparation of a yearbook.

From the first picture taken in the fall to the actual distribution of the Eyrie in the spring, members worked diligently to make South's first yearbook one which students would cherish.

Hard work and good times combined to make for a busy year—a year climaxed by the distribution of the 1965 Eyrie.

The result of patience and teamwork

Mr. Beatty, Advisor, and Corrinne Schmid, Editor-in-Chief, supervised the school newspaper.

By the combined efforts of the Southword's staff, Maine South's newspaper was published bi-monthly. Headed by the Editor-in-chief, Corrinne Schmid, and sponsored by Mr. Ken Beatty, the staff consisted of the various editors, their staffs, and the reporter pool, as well as two photographers. The reporter pool composed of twelve reporters was given assignments to obtain information on a certain news item or a special event. Next, the written story was corrected by others on the staff and finally, the corrected and finished stories were sent to the printers' and everyone awaited their return in finished form.

The various editors of Southwords covered all of the general news plus added feature stories. The feature editor and his staff had the job of finding extra news and stories which would interest the majority of the student body. These were often the same stories that were carried in the local papers. The sports events and the everyday happenings were covered by the sports editor and the co-news editors. Students not on the Southwords staff were also given the opportunity to contribute to the paper. At special times during the year, particularly around Christmas and Halloween, students were encouraged to submit stories, mostly fiction, and stories about the holiday.

In addition to publishing Southwords, the staff participated in outside activities. They combined with Eyrle in going to the Illinois High School Press Association convention at the University of Illinois. Another social activity of the year was Maine South's first Quill and Scroll Banquet where new positions for 1965-'66 were announced and new members met the staff.

Reporters worked closely with editors to produce stories.

Of all the extracurricular activities at Maine South, three of the most beneficial to the school and their members were Radio Club, Camera Club, and our FM radio station, WMTH. The purpose of Radio Club was to acquaint interested students with the enjoyment amateur radio could provide. The members learned various codes while their operating license permitted them to broadcast to all amateur frequencies. The long-range goal of the Camera Club was to have photography added to South's curriculum. During the year, the lack of equipment forced much of the club activities to be in the field of photographs. Because this was South's first year, WMTH did no broadcasting other than sports. All of the basketball and football games were reported on the FM station. By broadcasting these games, WMTH proved to be a service not only to the school, but also to the community.

Three clubs here at South accomplished the impossible made learning fun. These three wonders were Orchesis, Ski Club, and Girls' Bowling Club. First, members of Orchesis developed modern dance techniques during practice sessions and applied these techniques in various routines for the public. Secondly, Ski Club taught beginners the fundamentals of skiing, and gave the more advanced members a chance to ski with their friends during frequent trips to near-by resorts. Finally, Girls' Bowling Club taught girls to bowl and provided a time for the more experienced members to practice. Thus, these clubs found a way of changing the dreaded word learn by associating learning with fun and enjoyment.

Clubs developed student sportsmanship

The Bridge Club was organized to create opportunities for the amateur and the expert bridge player. Beginners had a chance to learn the rules and participate in actual games on Tuesday afternoons, while the advanced players engaged in competitive games on Thursdays.

Thursday afternoons also found members of the Chess Club deeply involved in decisive games which determined their rank as a chess player. As the all-school tournament was met with great enthusiasm, the club would have liked to compete with other school's chess clubs.

The Maine South Riding Club chose Idle Hour Stables for their weekly riding sessions. Two classes, jumper and equitarian, permitted the riders to compete at their own level. The outstanding event of the year was the horse show with students and teachers competing for ribbons

Science clubs correlated with courses

Science students were given an opportunity to increase knowledge in a field of their interest by joining one of the science clubs. The Biology Club, which met one Tuesday a month, was open to all students who had taken or were taking a course in biology. Sponsoring a cookie sale and a swimming party, the Biology Club highlighted the year with a trip to the Indiana Dunes. All students interested in the universe were able to discuss this interest every other Thursday by joining the

Astronomy Club. A trip to Northwestern University's Observatory was this club's main event. The Geology Club was formed to give geology students a chance to see for themselves some of the places which were discussed in class. Guest speakers added much information to the club. Numerous field trips were taken by the Geology Club, the trip to the Dells during spring vacation being the most outstanding Biology Club members furthered their skills in dissecting as well as working with other aspects of biology.

The weekly Thursday meeting of Maine South's Coin and Stamp Club gave its members an opportunity to sell, buy, or exchange their stamps with each other. An auction was held at which various coins and stamps were auctioned off to the highest bidder. Discussions pertaining to these hobbies provided the members with information which helped them to evaluate their own collections.

Math Club did much to promote an active interest in mathematics. The bi monthly meetings provided guest speakers and challenging math problems. A field trip was taken to the I B M. Data Processing Plant where the students were able to observe a number of computers. The math test, sponsored by the Mathematics Association of America was taken by interested students and members of the Math Club.

One of the major purposes of the language clubs was to give the student a background of the people and customs of a country. These clubs—German, Spanish, and French—showed movies and slides of their respective countries. Teachers and guest speakers lectured on the land and the customs of a people. The German Club had several parties this year and attended German films in the German Quarter. The highlight of the year was a trip to Milwaukee to take in some real German atmosphere. Spanish Club members also went to a movie in the Loop; beforehand they sampled food at a Mexican restaurant. A hootenanny was given by French Club to acquaint students with French songs. These members also made their annual trip to a French restaurant. The Latin Club members created spectacles relating the customs and beliefs of Latin speaking peoples. One such pageant, "Saturnalia," was held at Christmastime. Members of the language clubs were entertained and educated while studying a foreign language.

The newly organized Auto and Sports Club gave boys an opportunity to learn about car mechanics. Meeting every week after school and on Saturdays, the members repaired cars and engaged in sports activities, such as weight lifting.

Guest speakers instructed and entertained members of the Future Teachers' and Health Careers Clubs. Job opportunities and various fields of teaching and medicine were discussed. The proceeds from cake and taffy apple sales sponsored by the Future Teachers' Club sent three members to an Illinois State teaching convention. The club's Apple-Polishing Tea was the main event of the year.

Business Club members learned basic rules for conducting a business. By running the concession stands after school and at special activities, members put into practical operation all that they had learned.

Key, Interact, and Pep Clubs served the school and the community by sponsoring many worthwhile projects. Key Club collected bars of soap to send to a mental institution; the Key Club Paperback Bookstore served efficiently student needs. Similar to Key Club, Interact was affiliated with a Park Ridge men's club. A highlight of the year was the meeting of Interact members with members from other countries. Sponsoring the Kick-Off Dance and providing bus service to games helped Pep Club fulfill its objective of promoting school spirit.

Boys' and Girls' Clubs united students

Boys' Club and Girls' Club worked hard to unite the students. "Mum's the Word," the clubs' float at Dedication, enabled many students to make new friendships.

Before the holidays, Boys' Club sponsored the Christmas Card Post Office. East's and West's Post Offices joined in the mail system, permitting students to send cards to any Maine high school. The proceeds from this enterprise went to the Christmas formal "Stardust."

A fashion show in November, sponsored by Girls' Club, gave many girls the opportunity to model. The success of the Girls' Choice Dance illustrated the work of the club in the unification of the student body.

Creative clubs strove for perfection

Maine's creative clubs aimed at uniqueness of idea and perfection. Various projects undertaken by the Art, Building and Design, and Home Economics Clubs compelled the student to use his imagination and thus developed his skills. Members of Art Club received valuable individual attention at after school art classes and learned to criticize their own creative work. Home Economics Club stressed creativity in areas of sewing, cooking, and home efficiency. One of its activities was a trip to the University of Illinois Home Economics Department. Building and Design Club exposed members to the many fields of architecture not covered in class. Guest speakers lectured at many of the meetings. Thus, these clubs emphasized and encouraged the creative imagination of the members.

Cultural activities attracted students

Theater Club was organized for juniors and seniors to attend four professional plays during the school year, and the club met normally only those four times. This year a musical, the Ice Capades, a Mexican ballet and a leading motion picture preceded by a dinner party made up a rather unusual season for the group.

The Speech Activities Club provided the opportunity for students to compete verbally in various individual events held at high schools all over the state. The year's competition culminated at the district meet where club members placed in such events as after-dinner or extemporaneous speaking or original oration.

"Life With Father" opened season

Directors: Linda Barth Mr. Chastain, Linda Peterson.

In his first pair of long pants, Clarence confronted Mary.

Father's outward gruffness masked his inward gentleness.

Life With Father, the first school play presented at Maine South, was a comedy. Directed by Mr. Hal Chastain this play told of a family living in Victorian New York. Complications arose when Mr. Day, a strict domineering father of four, discovered he had not been baptised. The plot thickened as Mrs. Day tried to persuade her husband to be baptised. Mr. Day was finally persuaded, but only after many humorous incidents and heart-warming scenes.

Sponsored by South's Thespian Society, Life With Father gave cast members valuable acting experience. The student production staff learned new techniques in makeup, lighting, scenic design, and costuming.

The outcome of the play indicated the cast's interest in getting the theatrical part of the school activities off to an enthusiastic start. Hard work and long hours of practice were responsible for the successful performances on December 5th, 6th, and 7th.

In one hilarious scene Father even demanded God's mercy.

Snobbish Lady Bracknell scrutinized Algernon, her daughter's would-be fiance.

'Earnest'-another successful production

Lady Bracknell consented to Cecily's marriage to Algernon.

A subtle humor and a razor-sharp wit combined to make The Importance of Being Earnest a hit. As the plot unfolded, the audience became aware that the male lead character actually had two different names—Earnest and Jack. Further complications arose when 'both' characters became engaged to two different girls—Cecily and Qwendolen. The all Senior cast, under the direction of Mrs. Sandra Trunick, worked for months on perfecting the play. One unusual feature was the effective set designed by Mr. Hal Chastain, the technical director. In spite of bad weather on December 3rd, 4th, and 5th, many people came to see this hilarious spoof on the English upperclasses.

South eagerly supported debate

South's 1964-65 Debate Team, sponsored by Mr. Hoag and Mr. Rempel, became recognized as a major activity a well-deserved honor for a hard working group. Most of the year was spent in winning more than half of the debates which were centered around the topic "Resolved that nuclear weapons systems should be controlled by an international agency." In the Sectional Tournament the team tied for first place, enabling them to be the first Maine team in twenty years to go to the State finals. The star varsity team that went to State was composed of Greg Knell, Steve Karina, Andy Dyck, and Chris Hoyt. In addition, the varsity team appeared on CBS's "Rebuttal," debating the topic "Admission of lie detector results in courts of law."

Debaters Steve Karina, Greg Knell, Craig Anderson, and Chris Hoyt represented South on TV's "Rebuttal."

South's choral traditions established

Concert Choir, a mixed group composed mainly of upperclassmen, made its first appearance Sunday, October 25, 1964, Dedication Day. In December a mixed ensemble of sixteen students from the Concert Choir participated on a special radio program entitled "Today's Youth, the Active Ones." The Christmas Concert featured both the Concert Choir and Girls' Glee in the first full-length program in the new Mame South auditorium. In addition to performing at the Christmas Concert, the two groups performed at other special Christmas programs.

Variety Show was the first major appearances of the two groups in 1965. A full-length concert featuring the Concert Choir followed on March 28. Both groups also participated in Oklahoma. The enjoyable Spring Festival was the result of the combined efforts of Girls' Glee and Concert Choir. Concert Choir also provided the musical arrangement for Graduation. In addition, the choral groups performed for various civic and community organizations.

The newness of the instruments and uniforms raised spirits.

Bands important to school spirit

The Concert Band, comprised of 84 members, became the main big band during the football season and played at the four home football games. The first formal public appearance by the band was at the Dedication Day ceremony on Saturday, October 27. During the basketball season, the Concert Band was divided into three pep bands named Red, White and Black. Each of these three bands was responsible for playing at three home basketball games. A formal concert was presented by the Concert Band on January 31. In addition, the band performed at a Spring Picnic on May 14 and ended the year by performing at the Graduation Ceremony on June 9.

After the football season, members from the Concert Band organized to form the Dance Band, whose sole purpose was to provide the music for the Varsity Show on February 11. The Dance Band also played for the Tri-M Dance, which was held on May 10. Bands played an important role in many school functions.

“Americana” revived past

BROTHERS GRIM

The Maine South Variety Shows have been named Spirit of —,” which means that each year the date will be inserted into the name. “Spirit of ‘65” was given the theme “Americana.” “Americana’s” fifty-odd acts were based on the U.S. past and present. They included singing, dancing, monologues, and novelty acts. The successful acts ranged from the peacefulness of the singing and dancing of “Bird in a Gilded Cage” to the sheer bedlam of “The Keystone Cops.”

The try-outs for “Americana” were well attended by many good acts and were held the week of December 7 through 14. Rehearsals were begun after Christmas vacation, and the crews started to work making effective scenery and taking care of the technical stagework. The scenery captured the mood of “Americana” and the effective use of the American flag was a highlight.

TEMPERANCE FOREVER

WHAT WAS YOUR NAME IN THE STATES?

Cast members were entertained by the antics of the comedy acts.

The eternal triangle added to the comedy elements of Oklahoma.

“Oklahoma” lassoed enthusiasm

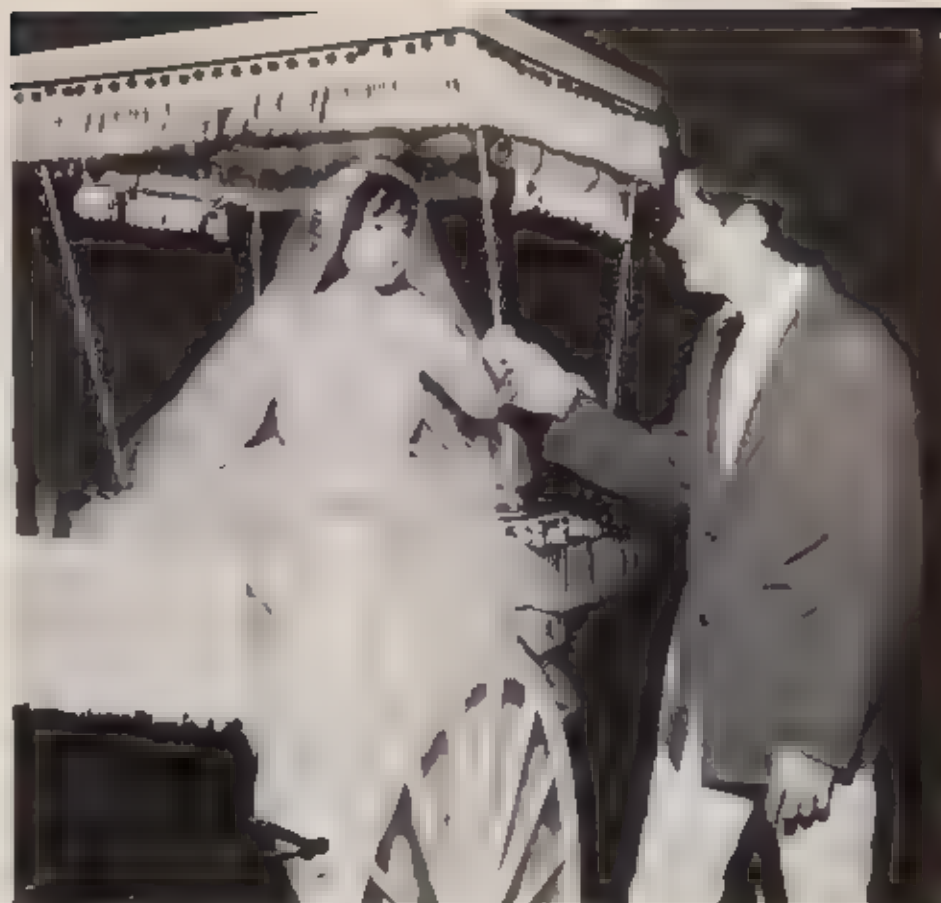

Jud's advances toward Laurie caused one of the conflicts.

Can-Can girls appeared in the dream ballet.

There ain't gon' be no fightin'.

The surrey added much to the design of the set.

On April 29, 30 and May 1, and 2 Maine South students, faculty, and parents flocked to see the first Spring Musical Oklahoma. Working with a Rogers and Hammerstein musical drama, Mr. Spear, the general director, and the students worked diligently to perfect their performances. Sponsored by the music department and the Music Boosters, Oklahoma was directed by Mrs. Given. Mr. Bell directed the chorus, Miss Bobrich planned the choreography, and Mr. Chastain served as technical director. The costumes and set added to the brilliance of the singing and dancing. One prop which aroused particular interest was an authentic surrey.

Oklahoma revolved around the love problems of Curly (Craig Anderson and Don Anderson) and Laurie

(Patti Bauer and Peggy Bussert), whose romance was hindered by Jud Fry's (Tony Halda and Ken Laspesa) attraction to Laurie. A subsidiary love triangle involving Ado Annie (Sukie Askew and Bonnie Buderus), Ali Hakim (Don Anderson and Steve Quast) and Will Parker (Joe Tryteer and Mark Newton) added the comedy element to the musical. Other major parts were played by John Mattick, Fred Jaeger, Carla Oleck, and Barbara Shedden. The work of the students and faculty was rewarded by the sell out crowds and enthusiastic response of the audience which added to make South's first musical as successful in Park Ridge as Oklahoma was on its opening night 22 years before.

The chorus sang and danced to the "Farmer and the Cowman Must Be Friends."

South's first honors awarded

Maine South's first national honorary scholastic organization was composed of the top ranking juniors in the school. Juniors had to be in the top five per cent of their class with no grade lower than B. Seniors in the top twenty-five per cent of their class who had a B average and no grade lower than C were also eligible for membership. Students are chosen by the faculty and

Mrs. Farmer, sponsor, on the basis of service, and leadership. Of the total 112 members, 24 seniors were elected in their junior year, 70 seniors were elected as seniors, and 18 juniors became new members. The first annual tea to acquaint new and old members was held March 25, and the formal initiation was held April 8.

Maine South's Brotherhood Society was composed of twenty-four students: three boys, and three girls from each class. Members were chosen by their respective classes on the basis of their friendliness, school-spirit, goodwill, and service. In April the society gave an all-school dance in order to sponsor speakers for future brotherhood assemblies.

The American Field Service is a complex organization with a major branch in New York and centers all over Europe. It was originally established during World War I as an ambulance service for those wounded on the battle field. After World War II the organization was revived and developed into a world wide service dedicated to understanding and good will among nations. All student ambassadors become temporary members of a family abroad and must be chosen with great care for their character, good citizenship, intelligence, and general ability to well represent America and bring back a valuable impression of the country they have visited.

Honors awarded to science students

Eleven seniors set a fine precedent for Maine South by being selected as finalists in the National Merit Scholarship Program. These students ranked in the upper one-half of one per cent of all high school seniors on tests taken in March of 1964. As finalists, they are eligible for one of the 1600 scholarships offered by the National Merit Scholarship Corporation.

Science seminar was a non credit class designed to give talented and interested students a chance to show their creative abilities. These science students were given the opportunity to do extended problems and experiments. Working with special materials and equipment, the students were able to become better acquainted with new and exciting scientific concepts.

Maine South's television debut on "It's Academic" was quite a success. Ellen Press, Art Curtis, and Steve Karina defeated students from Antioch and Aurora Madona in the first round, and hoped to continue their success in the following contests.

The National Forensic League worked to promote speech activities. In order to earn enough points to be admitted to the honorary, Maine students entered in contests ranging from debate and oratory to prose and comedy. And students found the contests educational and fun.

The Modern Music Masters is an honorary national music society. Membership is awarded to students in a concert music organization and who have a high scholastic average. The purpose of the society is to serve the school and community through music. This was accomplished by the recitals presented in association with the more advanced students in the music department.

44 students represented Maine South in the annual regional Scholastic Art Competition which was sponsored by Scholastic Magazine and held in Evanston February 20 through March 6. Of these entrants, 13 were awarded the gold key of excellence and four won additional blue ribbons and their work was sent on to compete in the National Scholastic Competition in New York. Drawings, sculptures and paintings were among the various entries made by these talented students.

MODERN MUSIC MASTERS

From Perseverance

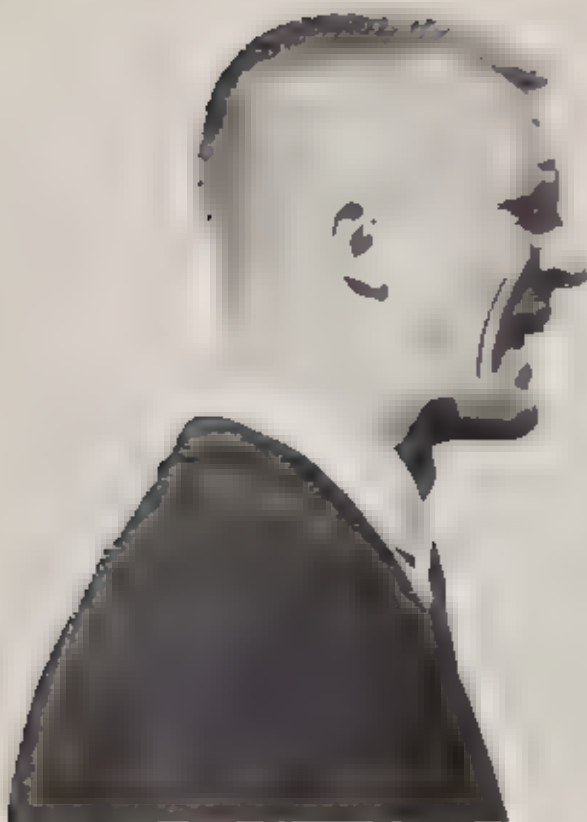

Along with a new school came a new spirit a spirit that grew from placid indifference to overwhelming confidence. Although at the beginning of the season the attendance at the games was surprisingly good, a genuine school spirit was definitely lacking. The growth of this indifference to confidence was fostered through the whole-hearted dedication and co-operation of every athlete. The one over-riding quality exhibited by all of our athletes was not merely their outstanding athletic achievement, but rather their total devotion as exemplified by the effort they put forth in the games and in their daily practice sessions. At first, the student body failed to recognize the importance of this unselfish dedication, but as the year progressed, the students realized that the success of the Hawks was a consequence of the athletes' loyalty and devotion to their teams. Once the squads realized their potential, they started to display the surging enthusiasm and energetic drive indicative of victorious teams. In the following months, this new, vigorous enthusiasm became quite evident, and as a result, spirit spread to every member of the student body.

ATHLETICS

To Victory

As usual Coach Nyren calmly watches the game.

Maine South football teams started their first season with inexperienced individuals in a new setting, but before the year was over, these boys had fashioned themselves into highly skilled, greatly spirited, well respected teams.

In South's first varsity game, the Hawks smothered non-conference Wheeling, 26-0. The Hawks won again at East Leyden, when during a steady downpour, they outlasted last year's conference co-champs, 14-6. In the third week of the season, our boys stopped the passing game of Willowbrook in a close 7-0 decision. The Hawks extended their longest winning streak of the season in a typically exciting game on Dad's Day against Proviso West, 20-16.

Fourteen to six was the close score as Palatine upset us in their Homecoming Game. The Hawks found revenge in our Dedication Game by holding out against tough Niles West, 20-19. In the next to the last game of the season, the Hawks set the stage for a championship showdown by crushing West Leyden, 21-0.

Excitement ran high for the last game of the season against the Falcons of Morton West. A victory would have tied the Hawks with the Falcons for the Des Plaines Valley crown. Sadly the usually stout defense collapsed in the second quarter, allowing Morton to score 19 points. That was all she needed in the 19-6 heartbreaker.

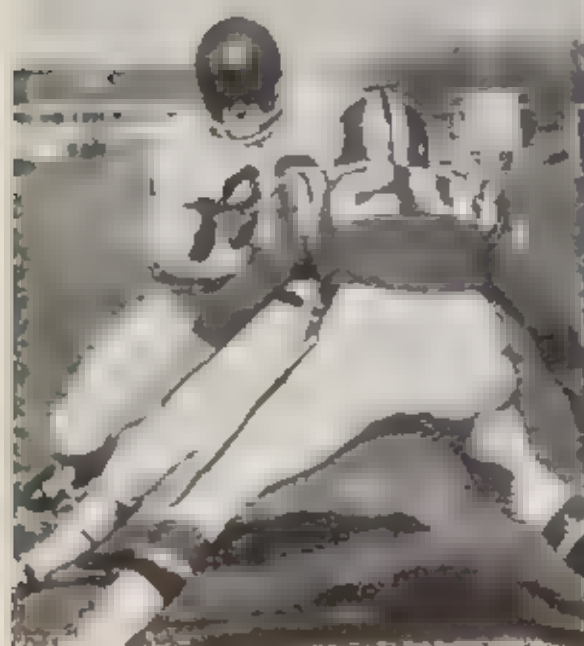

Despite the disappointment inherent in losing a championship game, the entire school was both proud and satisfied with our team's second place finish in the DVC.

"Come on gentlemen; we gotta go!"

The Junior-Varsity squad, under the direction of coaches Suffield and Gatta, finished the season with a 1-5-1 record. This enabled them to tie for last place in the Des Plaines Valley League. End Frank Dern, halfback Tom Dewar and linebacker Rick Davis all starred on defense. Offensively Tom Dewar and Steve Quast led the team at the quarterback position. Tom Harmon, Rick Davis, and George Czerniak were offensive backs who played exceptionally well throughout the season. Czerniak was also the leading punter on the team.

In a discouraging year the Hawks' only victory came against East Leyden by a close 7-6 margin. In a good defensive game, the Juniors played Niles North to a scoreless tie. They lost to Willowbrook 27-6, Proviso West 14-6, Palatine 13-7, West Leyden 19-7, and Morton West 14-7.

Back Rick Davis was named most valuable player by his teammates, while Jim Larson was the honorary captain.

The Frosh-Soph football team, which performed consistently well throughout the season, finished the year with a fine 5-2 record in conference play. This was good enough to give the Little Hawks a second place finish in the final Des Plaines Valley League standings.

The great quarterbacking of Jim Raymond, coupled with the hard running of backs Don Lossman, Randy Muntean, Bob Simpson, and Chris Wienke, gave the team a winning offense which netted twenty touchdowns during the season. The defense, led by lineman Bob Seidel and back Dave Wintergerst, gave only fourteen touchdowns to their opponents.

In the season's first game, the Frosh-Soph team played with the varsity against non conference Wheeling and lost by a 28-8 score. They came back against East Leyden to win decisively 21-7. The last two losses of the season came against Willowbrook and Proviso West by scores of 14-2 and 39-14 respectively. They finished the season well beating Palatine 13-0, Niles West 27-13, West Leyden 20-7, and Morton West 20-6.

Frosh teams do well: finish 10-4

The Freshman "A" football team, coached by Mr Ziemek, started the season slowly with three consecutive losses to Morton West 34-13, West Leyden 7-6, and Niles West 14-13. After these tough defeats they bounced back against their next four opponents beating Palatine 13-7, Proviso West 6-0, Willowbrook 25-0, and East Leyden 34-0. The players elected John Hughes most valuable player, quarterback and high scorer was Dave McGuire, honorary captain

The "B" squad had one of the best seasons of all Hawk teams during the year. In fact, they won the conference championship and all but one game. The only loss of the season was to Proviso West in a close 6-0 contest. They defeated Morton West 7-6, West Leyden 6-0, Niles West 20-6, Palatine 26-0, Willowbrook 6-0, and East Leyden 26-6. Halfback Tom Tetlow did an outstanding job at his position, and was named Most Valuable Player by his teammates. Ross Rubino was the Honorary Captain.

Kelly, Ayres lead cross-country team

Running through its first cross country season, the Maine South Hawks, led by seniors Larry Kelly and Larry Ayres, compiled a 7-3 record in the Des Plaines Valley League.

The Hawks began the season with three fast victories over Wheeling, 21-49, Prospect, 24½-31½, and East Leyden, 26-29. Kelly finished first in each of these meets, and Ayres placed among the top three runners in each one. Niles West and Schurz fell to the Hawks in a triangular meet, as the Hawks totaled 30 points and their opponents 38 and 53, respectively. Willowbrook and Proviso West conquered the Hawks in the next two meets by 26-36 and 16-46.

In the Des Plaines Valley League conference meet, Kelly placed 10th, Ayres finished 14th, Phil McCullough took 1th, junior Rich Syverson placed 20th, and sophomore Bob Benedict placed 28th, to lead the Hawks to an eighty-nine point third place tie with Palatine.

Bill DeBartolo left was a senior all-conference, all-suburban forward. From an understudy to last year's seniors, he rose to become the Hawks' high scorer and rebounder. He hit for 446 points while being elected the team's honorary co-captain.

Larry Wiseburn, center, was one of the outstanding guards in the state. After making the all-conference team as a Junior at East last year, this year he was all-conference, all-Rockford Holiday Tourney, all-area, all-state. The Hawks' captain scored 432 points and was selected the team's most valuable player.

Bob Field, right, was an all-conference guard who did a superb job in setting up the team's offensive and defensive plays. He was selected honorary co-captain with DeBartolo.

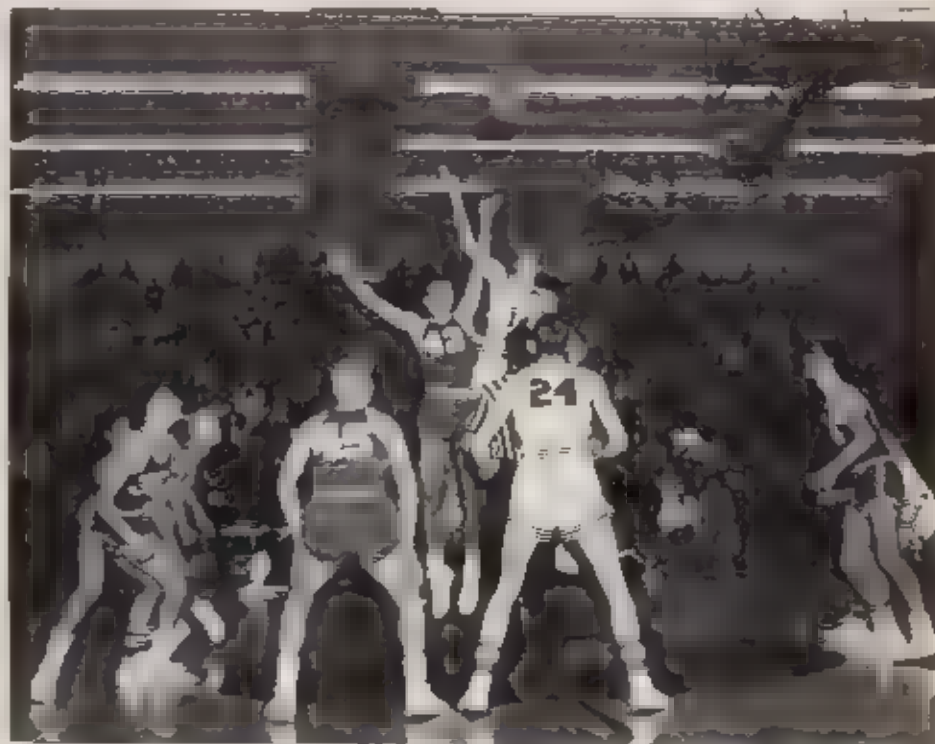

Coach Brady often gave advice in huddles during the game. Here he counsels all-state guard Larry Wiseburn.

Despite a weak showing in the state tournament, the Hawk hoopsters had a great season, finishing with a twenty win and four loss overall season record. The team made a strong showing in the Rockford Holiday Tournament, as they captured the Consolation Championship by defeating Peoria Manual 71-65, Harlem 53-44 and East Peoria 89-64. In Des Plaines Valley league play, they tied with East Leyden for the conference crown with a twelve win and two loss record. In one of the year's most exciting games against East Leyden, the Hawks virtually cinched their share in the championship by defeating East 70-68 in a tense overtime contest. Both of their conference defeats were by one point. They lost to East Leyden in an earlier match 52-51, and they were upset by Willowbrook 58-57. Other losses in the season came to Peoria Spaulding 86-79 in the Christmas Tourney, and St. Patrick in the last game of the season by the overwhelming score of 80-55. It was this game that eliminated the Hawks from competition in the state tourney.

Along with the outstanding play of guards Larry Wiseburn, Bob Field, and forward Bill DeBartolo, senior forward Mike Andrews, guard Jeff Phillips, and center Mark Waters played consistently well and were all great assets to a fine team. Juniors Dave Strom and Paul Wehman were often in the starting lineup as they added their skills to the squad. Next year, Hawk fans can look forward to another exceptional team led by returning lettermen Dave Strom and Paul Wehman along with Fernan Montero, Rick Kilinski, Jim Stiggleman, and Mike Sarcia.

Coach Jack Tilley's varsity swimming team had an extremely successful season in which they were undefeated in conference dual meets. Throughout the year they lost but two meets. These were to two of the toughest teams in the state—Deerfield 75-20, and New Trier 83-12. The mermen met these teams in the district meet and finished third behind them. They swam away with the conference meet with their closest rivals trailing nineteen points behind.

Maine had six swimmers representing the team in the state meet. The fine medley relay team of Frank McCullough, backstroke; most valuable swimmer Greg Knudson, butterfly; honorary captain John Benda, breast stroker; and John Zucco, free style, just missed the finals by finishing seventh. Senior diver Dick List finished fourth; Junior Jim Kersting was seventeenth in the diving.

Maine's relay team of Frank McCullough, Greg Knudson, John Zucco, and John Benda took seventh place in the state meet.

Dick List, left, earned a fourth in the state meet.

Coach Cada's varsity gymnastics team possessed a few outstanding individuals, but lacked the necessary depth for a conference finish above fifth place. In conference dual competition they were 2-4, while overall they were 4-5. They won in meets over Wheeling 75½-50½, East Leyden 73-59, Palatine 68-64, and Niles North 72-50. Their losses in a tough schedule were to conference champs Willowbrook 82-50, Niles East 76-56, West Leyden 72-60, Niles West 75-57, and Proviso West 67½-61½.

Dennis Osgood was named the team's honorary captain because of his eleventh place finish on the parallel bars in the state meet, and his general excellence throughout the season. Gary Ryan, the most valuable player worked on the high bar. He qualified for state by finishing fifth in his event. Early in the season, senior John Kirchhoff was seriously injured on the trampoline, but he bravely came back for an eighth place finish in conference. Tumblers Dan Magne and Al Cook struggled all year for the number one position in their event. In the conference meet Magne was third and Cook was fourth, while in district Cook was fourth and Magne fifth.

Three Hawks take sectional thirds

Despite a few individual standouts, Coach Tom Ziemek's varsity wrestling squad had a disappointing season with only three victories against eight losses and one tie. In conference meets the team had only one victory in seven contests. This record tied them for seventh place in the final standings.

Four year letterman and most valuable player Wes Caine starred in the 120 pound class. He lost only one match throughout his senior year. Ron Otto, one class above Caine at 127 pounds, was named the honorary captain of the varsity team. Caine, Otto, and Tom Kersten at 133 pounds each took thirds in the sectional meet. Other standouts on the varsity level were Steve Richards, 165 pounds, and John Pirie, 95 pounds.

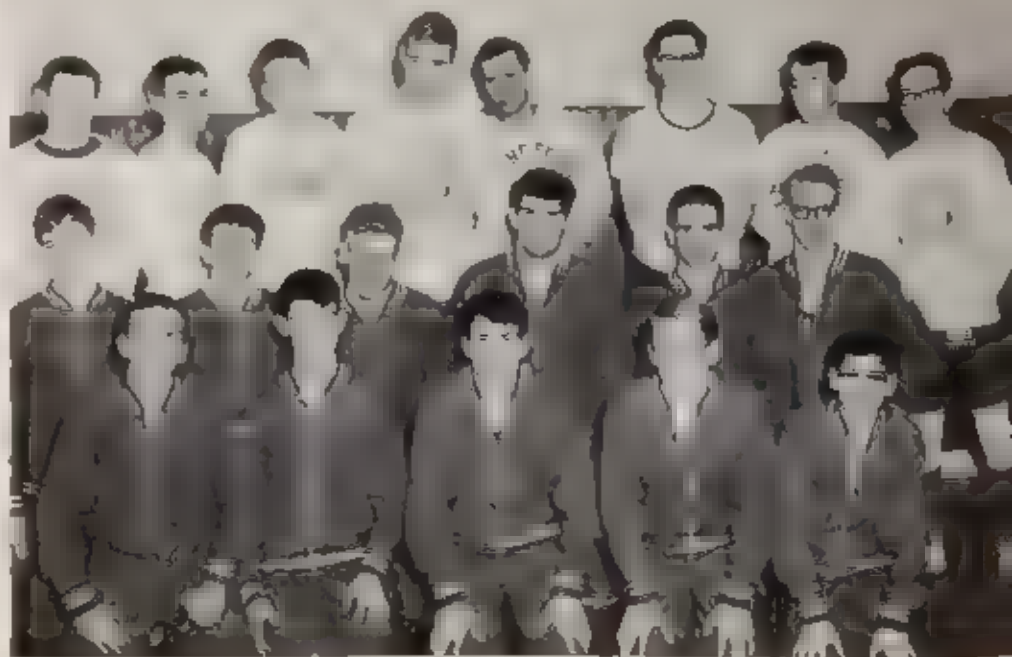

The junior varsity team fared little better. They managed to win three non-conference meets against Glenbard South 35-13, Wheeling 24-22, and Niles North 26-22. In conference play they defeated Palatine 33-14 and Niles West 40-11. But they lost conference meets to Morton West 30-21, East Leyden 41-5, West Leyden 33-11 and Proviso West 32-14. Thus, their final conference record of two wins and four defeats gave them fifth place in the standings. James Calabrese was voted the honorary captain of the squad, while William Lutz was honored as the team's most valuable player.

FROSH-SOPH WRESTLING TEAM

The frosh-soph team, under coach Gartner, showed some fine varsity prospects while compiling a 5-6 overall record. With a 3-4 conference record they took fourth place in the final standings. Their losses were to Glenbrook South 34-24, Willowbrook 13-10, East Leyden 31-26, West Leyden 38-13, Palatine 27-22, and Niles North 39-10. Their victories came against River Grove 30-16, Ridgewood 29-16, Morton West 31-21, Niles West 44-7, and Proviso West 24-19. The team's most valuable player was Robert Simpson, while the captain was Gary Gaudio.

The freshman team won only two meets of twelve, defeating Maine East 30-24, and Niles North 26-24. With no conference wins, the frosh squad took last place. Les Matthews was elected most valuable player, and Jeff Rehder was voted honorary captain.

Trackmen third in conference

The trackmen, led by national record holder Larry Kelly, had a fine indoor season culminated in a sixth place finish at the unofficial indoor state track meet at Oak Park. In indoor dual meets, the Hawks defeated Palatine Conant 99-1, Palatine 56-44, and Niles North 77-23. Their only loss came to conference champs Morton West 65-34½. At the conference meet, the squad was third with 27½ points. At the Oak Park Relays, which was the final indoor competition of the season, South made a strong showing against the toughest teams in the state by taking sixth place with thirteen points. Senior vaulter Doug Macomber finished second in conference with a 13'6" effort. Broad jumper Jim Brandon was the indoor conference champ with a leap of 20'8". The mile relay team of Cantonis, Murphy, McCullough, and Kelly, had some good times, their best being a 3:32.0 effort. Bob Cycon performed well in both the shot put and discus throughout the season.

Larry Kelly set four national interscholastic records as a middle distance runner on Maine track teams. While running for Maine East in his junior year, he was on the record setting two mile relay team, set the national record for the 600 yard run indoors, and was state champ in the half mile with a national record time of 1:50.4. In his senior year at Maine South, Kelly set another national record as he ran a 1:52.0 half mile in the Des Plaines Valley league indoor conference meet.

Lettermen lead winning squad

Maine's varsity baseball team opened the 1965 season with a win over Glenbrook 8-3. Five returning lettermen, Bill Sanders, Eric Zinsmeister, Jim Yrigoyen, Dick Bigelow, and Larry Wiseburn, gave the team a strong nucleus. Working with star Bill Sanders on the pitching staff were four juniors: Carlos Maningas, Dick Hood, Larry Glaug, and John Spiggos. Catching for the fine staff were Eric Zinsmeister and Tom Dewar. Other seniors on the team were Larry Wiseburn, Chuck Coad, Jim Yrigoyen, Tom Kersten, Dick Bigelow, and Ron Otto. Juniors on the squad were Dave Strom, Rick Kilinski, Augie Matejzel, Bob Holz, Renny Smith, and Russ Gibe.

"M" CLUB

Any student who has participated in sixteen quarters of football or earned four points in cross country has passed the requirements necessary for a letter in one of the fall sports. In the winter sports, a boy must have played in one half of all basketball games, or earned fifteen points in swimming, twenty-one points in wrestling, or twenty five points in gymnastics. To receive a letter in a spring sport, a student must have participated in one half of all baseball games, played in two-thirds of all tennis or golf matches, or earned fifteen points in track. This year, Maine South has seventy five boys who have passed the requirements necessary for membership in M-Club.

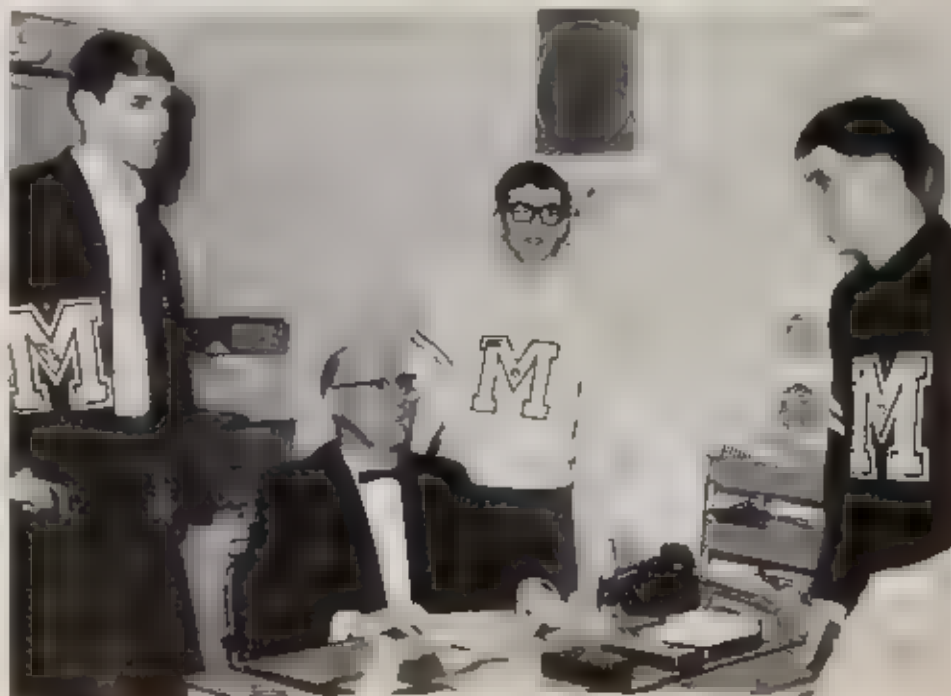

Sponsored by Mr. O. K. Wilson, and assisted by president Eric Zinsmeister, John Benda, Tim Lindgren, and Jim Yrigoyen, Maine South's M Club was responsible for a number of important events throughout the school year. On February 6, the M Club-Faculty basketball game was held in the spectator gym. Always popular with both students and adults, this game proved to be no exception. A capacity crowd saw the M-Club stay behind from beginning to end. The final score was a lopsided victory for the faculty 69-31.

During the year, M-Club submitted a constitution to the Student Council for approval. In this constitution, all of the goals that M-Club had envisioned were formally stated. The preamble reads as follows:

We, the members of Maine's lettermen club, in order to form and establish a system of student participation in school athletics, to promote a better relationship between the athletes of Maine Township High School South, to increase, protect, and to foster the spirit and reputation of our high school, do ordain and establish this constitution for the members of Maine Township High School South's "M" Club.

"M" Club strengthens school spirit

Initiates suffer for "M" Club

Initiates live in constant fear . . .

To become a member of "M" Club the student must have first passed the requirements necessary for earning a varsity letter. This, however, is not the only criterion, the lettermen must also go through a period of initiation. In the two part plan for initiation, all lettermen desiring membership are assigned to "M" Club "fathers." In the informal initiation, the boys carry everyone's books, walk backwards down the halls, and push hard against the walls, shouting: "The wall is falling!" None of the stunts create hard feelings, though. In fact, they bring "M" Club members and the lettermen being initiated closer together.

Initiates also wear beanies between classes on the days designated by the initiation chairman. On the final day of the three-day informal initiation period, all prospective members wear a coat and tie, and are forbidden to talk between classes. All new members are also required to memorize the "M" Club pledge and traditions. Finally, initiates make a plaque to be used at the formal initiation banquet.

So, if you ever see boys running around the cafeteria playing "Cowboys and Indians," or crawling along the floor like a dirty ol' rattlesnake, or running laps around the centers building singing "Old MacDonald Had a Farm," they are not crazy, but rather they are "M" Club initiates.

. . . but enjoy the good-natured ribbing.

Organization key to marlin success

Organization and professional perfection were stressed this year in Marlin, the synchronized swimming club. The highlight of their activities was the annual water ballet show in April. Under the enthusiastic leadership of Miss Butler, several changes were made from previous years. The girls auditioned in order to belong to the club, and then were tested and placed in acts according to their skill and the degree of difficulty of the act. Schedules were made in advance to allow the swimmers to plan their activities to make it possible for maximum attendance. Another innovation which lent color and uniformity to the show was purchase of costumes instead of homemade creations.

The climax of a week of intensive practice was the show, which included acts choreographed by Miss Butler and solos devised by the swimmers. That preceding week was devoted to coordinating lighting, sound, and movements to produce a program of exceptional quality for the new Thursday matinee and the evening performances.

According to the president, Barb Wendling, the success of Marlin Club this year was due not only to the enthusiasm and hard work of the members, but also to the tireless patience and vitality of Miss Butler.

Cooperation leads to proficiency.

Cheerleaders incite spirit

Our cheerleaders have made an extra effort to unify school spirit. Having a new team and producing new traditions has added to the excitement of their job. It is up to them, along with the support of the student body, to establish the enthusiasm which will be the background for future spirit. Their unlimited display of vigor has inspired our teams to victory and enlivened the cheering section which produced a lively, noisy atmosphere at the games. Not having an easy job, Peggy Jacobs, as captain, and the rest of the squad have worked late after school to perfect new cheers and formations for the opening games. We are grateful for the enthusiasm of our conscientious and vivacious cheerleaders.

Pom-Pom achieved perfection in routines

Pom-Pom Squad, one of the more popular organizations at school, functioned as the precision dancing team at South Performing at the pep rallies and varsity games' half-times, the girls also appeared at Dedication, V-Show, and DePaul University.

The success of the squad not only came from the lively original numbers but also perfection, a most vital element. By maintaining a vigorous schedule of practice during the summer and after school, Pom Pom proved to be a valuable asset in promoting school spirit and pride.

G.A.A. promoted girls' sports by giving girls an opportunity to practice in their leisure time. This organization provided time for enjoyment and improvement in swimming, gymnastics, basketball, volleyball, badminton, track and field, and many other sports. The year's social activities began with co-ed play night, followed by a Christmas stocking service project and Christmas party with East and West, all-star basketball and volleyball games, Father-Daughter Frolic and mother-daughter recreational night, an Awards Banquet, a swim meet, and several overnights. G.A.A. added to its activity roster interscholastic tennis and badminton competition. The tennis team ended the season with a record of four wins against one loss. G.A.A.'s attendance illustrated another side of the zestful enthusiasm at Maine South.

Sophomore boys and girls who show exceptional ability in physical education may apply for the junior leader training program. Boys must be good in touch football, basketball, gymnastics, cross-country, baseball, track and field, wrestling, swimming, weight-lifting, and physical fitness tests. The girls are proficient in tennis, golf, modern dance, field hockey, track and field, archery, baseball, badminton, volleyball, swimming, and gymnastics. Leadership and the ability to get along with others are also important factors in the selection of trainees. In the fall, all juniors who had been accepted into this program were assigned to a special gym class. For boys, the class met third period, and was taught by Mr. Tilley. The girls' classes, which met third and fourth periods, were taught by Miss Pierce.

Senior leaders, who had completed the training phase of the program in their junior year, were assigned to one class where they served as assistants to the physical education teachers. Their skills and training provided invaluable aid to both the student and the busy gym teacher.

From Solitude

A general feeling of confusion and loneliness permeated the halls of Maine South on its first official opening day of school. Stunned by a maze of halls and empty lockers, most students could think only of how different the new school was. No one was sure whether or not he liked the new and different facilities at Maine South. Bare grounds and unfinished details gave the school a bleak appearance, and the students had to adjust to unknown teachers and unwelcome homework.

But the disillusionment of the students did not last long. During the first weeks of school, Maine South was challenged — the school triumphed. More and more people decided that they liked the school's layout, the homeroom arrangements, and the double lockers. Teachers became familiar; classes grew more interesting; and the exchange of smiles and greetings in the halls was soon commonplace. With the start of sport events came a feeling of school spirit and unification among the students. Participation in South's vast number of activities helped to draw individuals and the different classes into one student body. Maine South went through many tests as its students explored it, but the new school successfully passed them all.

Miss H. Johnson

Mr. Snider

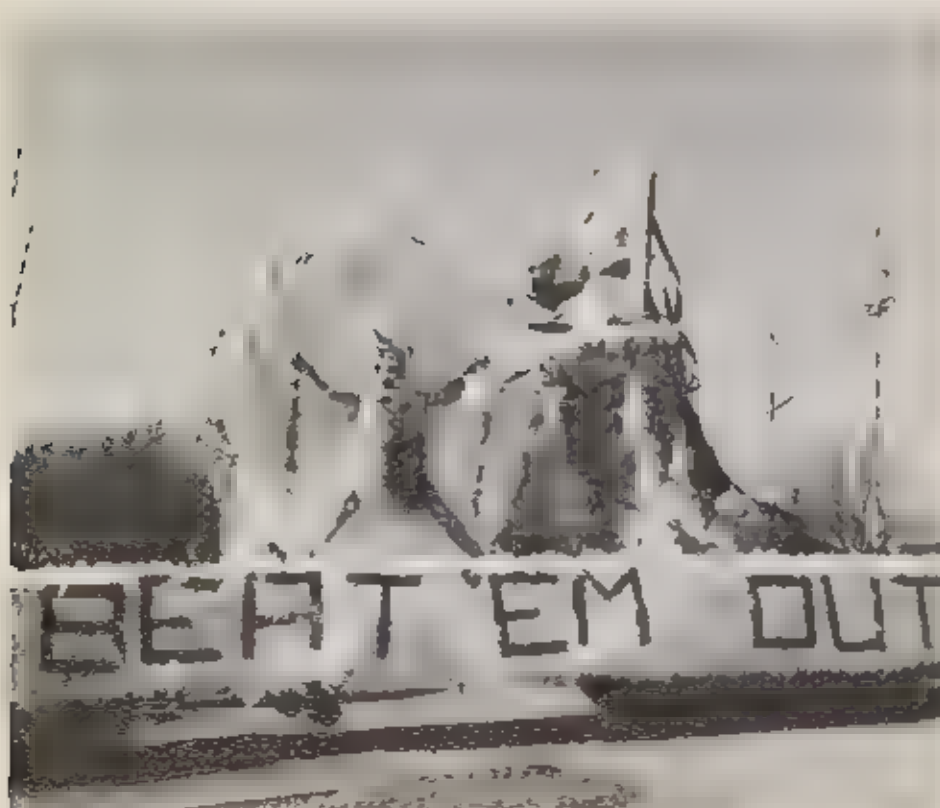

With the opening of the new school, we, the class of 1968, escaped many of the distinctions which usually characterize freshmen. "Freshman Day," on September 8, gave us quite an advantage over the bewildered upperclassmen. We were happy to change tradition and guide the seniors around the new school. We considered ourselves privileged to be able to start our high school years in the beautiful new building and are proud to be known as the first class to complete four years at Maine South.

Freshmen introduce

Float-building provides fun and experience.

The election of our class officers, class council representatives, and student council representatives gave us a feeling of membership in the student body. As we joined clubs and participated in sports and other all school activities, we finally felt as though we had become part of the school.

The athletes in our freshman class showed great potential, especially our B squad football team which won the conference championship.

Many hectic but fun-filled hours were spent on our Dedication Day float, "Beat 'em Out!" Although we did not place in the judging, we gained valuable experience in float building which will prove useful in future years.

Our first class party proved a great success. The theme of "Clash Party" was enthusiastically carried out by everyone. The huge crowd arrived attired in a multitude of indescribable combinations.

Throughout the year we became more accustomed to the new ways of high school life and are now looking forward to the rewarding and exciting years remaining for us at Maine South.

CLASS SPONSORS

When we entered the doors of Maine South on the first day of school, we did not quite know what to expect. Unfamiliar faces loomed before us in halls and classrooms; everything was different. Although some of us had spent our freshman year at Maine West and others at Maine East, we all cooperated to make Maine South's Class of 1967 unified.

and promote class spirit

On October 10, our first class party, "South Soph Starter," was held in the girls' gym. All of those attending spent an enjoyable evening dancing to the music of the Malibus. Another successful class party was held in January.

Our efforts on our Dedication Day float "Dragon 'em Under" paid off when the float placed third in the competition.

But perhaps the biggest project of the year was choosing the emblem for our class rings. Everyone's contributions were considered as we decided on an emblem which would distinguish our rings from the rings of the East and West students.

Indeed, sophomores were in the spotlight of many projects and extra-curricular activities this year. We participated in sports; worked on Southwords, the school newspaper, Eyrie, the yearbook; held club offices; and participated in the mock election held in November. At class council meetings held every two weeks, our plans for the year's activities were carefully organized.

Our first two years of high school have passed so quickly that it does not seem possible that next year we will be upperclassmen.

Mr. Powers

Coming from two different schools we united the East and the West and came up with South. The fact that we were upperclassmen did not help us to find our way around—we had to ask directions from freshmen! We found our classrooms very different from the ones we left behind. Our history and English rooms had tables instead of the familiar desks, and some of us even had classes in lecture halls. A new sound through the intercom dismissed us for passing periods.

CLASS OFFICERS

Juniors assume roles

South's halls suddenly become alive at 3:10.

Our first class project was the float, "Easy Prey", with which we proudly took second place. Changing its theme at the last minute caused chaos—unbelievably we accomplished more in the last two hours of work than we did all week! "Dance Without a Name," our smashing class party, took place on November 7th, in the girls' gym. Music for this dance was by the Animal Men—never was a dance so noisy!

Knowing we would soon assume the role of school leaders, we began to prepare. There was a great deal of excitement and confusion during the week of March 22-26 Election Week. At that time we elected the officers, president and secretary, of Student Council. Other activities in which we participated were college night and American Field Service. With leadership in mind, we endeavored to do our best.

During the year juniors contributed strongly to the various sports on both the varsity and junior varsity level. Junior girls held a majority of the positions on both cheerleading squads.

Our dreamy and long awaited junior prom climaxed a year full of memories.

From Hesitation

As the month of August drew to a close, we looked forward to our final year in high school. What would the following days hold in store for us? Would our last year be as enjoyable as previous years, minus old friends and familiar surroundings? Our doubt increased when we were confronted by an unfinished building and an unfamiliar maze of halls on that first day. As we saw the lockers, the homerooms, the split lunchroom, and the barren library, a longing for the security of our old schools overtook us. We could not help remembering all of the good times we had had there—homecoming, election week, Christmas food basket drives, and games.

We soon realized, however, that we would not only enjoy the same traditional activities with the added prestige of a senior, but we would also have a hand in initiating them at our new school. As graduation approached, we realized more and more how fortunate we were this year. For we, more than any other class, were given the opportunity to help build our school and its activities. Because this year has been so important for all of us, we were especially proud to become the first graduating class of Maine South.

It seems as if we have left Maine South for the last time almost as soon as we entered it for the first time. At first we were resentful at having our class split the year before graduation. We felt more than any other class with the new responsibility of seniors, the confusion of getting a new school to function smoothly. But after the first few weeks, class council was moving with plans for the prom and other graduation activities. Soon the inconveniences were either eliminated or ignored as we went enthusiastically about our work.

Naturally there was no Homecoming '64, but our Dedication activities were a big success—especially since our queen was the loveliest ever, and our float, "Frankly, the Heat's On," won first prize.

climaxes years of study for seniors

The annual Senior class-sponsored play this year was "The Importance of Being Earnest." The play was an entirely new experience in play production, and our all-senior cast did a fine job.

Soon after the play came our most successful class party, "Fun and Games '65." But by the time December came to a close we had lost much of our enthusiasm. We had gone through interviews and aptitude tests and college boards and scholarship applications. Now all we could do was wait—and worry.

We played the usual role of seniors in the Student Council Elections in March—old officers promoting their proteges; acting as campaign managers and committee chairmen. By this time most of us had heard the crucial decisions from our college choices, and we had our summer jobs lined up. But despite the fact that our futures seemed secure, a constant restless boredom hung over us as we waited impatiently for June.

We suffered peacefully through April and May, and then, finally, came graduation! We had had a long struggle with plans for our after-prom at Zion and the dance at the Brass Rail, and we were in a panic to settle grade requirements before the Big Day. After our mad rush for "freedom" during previous months, we were mildly shocked to realize suddenly that we were actually leaving Maine. Many who had said they could not wait to go had tears in their eyes as they looked at the sea of faces and the blurred red and white figures walking solemnly in procession. But the sentimentality was short-lived and soon all we could feel was relief and pride—boundless pride.

Who said government was not interesting?

From Summer Frustration

Last summer the teachers of Maine South arrived at the unfinished school to begin preparation for the new year. As they entered the school, faculty members found a maze of long, intertwining corridors. Workmen were busy in every room putting the floors, blackboards, and windows in place. As the first day of school grew near, both workmen and teachers worked together to prepare the building for classes. Despite the united effort, teachers were forced to plan their classes around the noise of continued construction.

When the library opened, the shelves were empty. Because of the lack of library materials, many teachers were forced to restrict their homework assignments until the library facilities were more complete. And teachers devoted much of their time to ordering books and audio-visual aids for the following year.

As the year progressed, the teachers became acclimated to the facilities of the school, and the classroom routines became more organized. With the school near completion the faculty and administration realized that by working together they had overcome many difficulties of the first year in a new school.

Administrators maintain schools,

The responsibility of maintaining the schools in District 207 falls to the Board of Education. It establishes policies, and regulations under which all the schools function, and it selects a superintendent who acts as the executive director of the school district, and reports to them on all matters pertaining to the school system.

The superintendent, Dr. Wiltse, coordinates the work of the administrative departments and maintains and supervises the orderly conduct of the schools' affairs.

The duties of the assistant superintendent, Mr. Frost, are to: prepare courses of study and schedules, evaluate the accelerated courses, select and evaluate old and new textbooks, be responsible for the hiring of new teachers, and assume the duties of the superintendent in his absence or inability to fulfill his duties.

The business manager, Mr. Markworth, works under the direction of the superintendent and supervises the budget, financial reports, and the payrolls. Mr. Shultz, coordinator of guidance, relates his research to the evaluation of guidance services, the administration of group and standardized testing. The aim of Mrs. Becker, school psychologist, is to aid staff members and parents to attain an educational goal of helping each pupil develop his potential.

Educational leaders institute systems

Dr. Clyde K. Watson, principal, holds the position of being the educational leader at Maine South. His primary function is to provide guidance to others in order to successfully accomplish the job of teaching. To meet the student's needs he improves the educational program through his cooperation, service, and leadership among teachers and students.

The assistant principal, Mr. Robert G. Barker, assumes the principal's duties in his absence. He supervises instruction and classroom procedures, notifies substitute teachers, arranges fire drills, prepares teacher schedules, checks the eligibility of athletes, sends eligibility lists to other schools, and approves any excursions.

These men helped to institute the team-teaching system and the use of lecture halls at South. The purpose of team-teaching is to give the student a chance to be exposed to more than one teacher in a subject, to allow the student more opportunity to do individual work, and to work more on his own.

In each corner of the center's section a lecture hall was constructed. Each holds 152 students, and although any department may use them, three of the rooms are generally used by the social science, science, and the English departments.

New teachers, systems at South

Maine East and West were two of the tributaries which contributed instructors to fill South's one hundred and forty four vacant teaching posts, twelve of which were in counseling. The remaining jobs were filled with new teachers to the Maine system.

Groups conquer problems at South

The opening of the unfinished school this fall posed some problems to the cafeteria staff and the custodial staff. The cafeteria staff, because the dishwashers were not installed, served the meals on paper plates. The custodians and the matrons worked to see that the school was maintained, and the custodians found it necessary to pay special attention to the floor because of the ease with which it was scuffed. The campus officer, who patrolled the parking lots and checked the parked cars, was assisted in his duties by the parking lot monitors. Working through the driver education department, these monitors also checked for improperly parked cars. The personnel office helpers and the attendance office helpers delivered slips to study halls and classes requesting students to attend conferences with one of the various deans or the career counselor, or to report to the attendance office. These groups worked to keep the school functioning properly.
